

Welcome to your new adventure, and a home at UNT!

UNT Anthropology majors are typically people who are inherently curious about the world. Our students ask questions, and become critical thinkers. Career paths are vast: anthropologists become advocates, educators, designers, environmentalists, museum curators, community organizers, public health practitioners, cultural resource managers, consumer insight specialists, urban planners, doctors, lawyers, activists, and even professors. Anthropology majors make a difference in the world because they see the world in a different way.

Anthropology classes involve advanced level study of people and places (i.e. Maya, Africa, South Asia, South Pacific, Indigenous Southwest, Latin America) and topics (i.e. Social Media, Design, Urban, Medical, Religion, Environment, Climate, Tourism, Education, Race, Gender, Migration, Business, Language) in socio-cultural anthropology. Opportunities also exist for students to reach deeper into their course of study through experiences like internships, directed studies, and undergraduate research opportunities. Our faculty's research interests intersect topics that have to do with the environment, sex and gender, social justice, public health, medicine, migration, education, urbanism, and more. At UNT, we specialize in an applied approach to anthropology which lends a practical and "real-world" dimension to our undergraduate curriculum.

Please come by. We want to get to know you better!

Department Chair

Dr. Henry
Sycamore Hall 121
940.565.3836
doug.henry@unt.edu

Director of Undergraduate Programs

Dr. Carrington
Sycamore Hall 127
940.565.6980
jara.carrington@unt.edu

Faculty Advisor

Professor Nelson
Sycamore Hall 120
940.369.8449
melissa.nelson@unt.edu

ANTHROPOLOGY

Sycamore Hall Suite 119

Perception of a Snail

Artist:

Tarci Lang

ANTH Undergraduate Research Fellow

Multi-Species Ethnography

940.565.2290

anthropology@unt.edu

@untanthropology

anthropology.unt.edu