Brittany A. Huner, PhD earned her Bachelor of Arts degree in history from the University of Northern Colorado (2013) and her Master of Arts degree in history from the University of Colorado at Denver (2018). She successfully defended her dissertation, "'Soldier Girls, Minus Frills, Minus Curls:' Creating the American Military Woman in Media Portrayals and Servicewomen's Self-Representations During World War II" in May 2025 under the guidance of Dr. Vojin Majstorovic.

After graduating from the University of North Texas, Brittany accepted a position as a Research Historian at the Jenny Craig Institute for the Study of War and Democracy at the National WWII Museum in New Orleans, Louisiana. There she continues her research on servicewomen's experiences during World War II and other aspects of America's role in the war.

Brittany currently lives in New Orleans with her cat and spends her free time enjoying the food and music that the city has to offer.
